Whatley's Favourite Fizz

Deutz

Deutz is not only one of our favourite Champagnes but also our house pour. Deutz are based in Ay just outside Epernay often referred to as the heart of Champagne. The house was established in 1838 and was a founding member of the 20 Grand Marques Champagne. There are more than 75 percent of their vineyards in Grand Cru sites these stretch across

Taittinger

Another family owned Grand Marques Champagne based in the famous Champagne town of Reims. Focussing upon Chardonnay Taittinger shows elegance and freshness whilst keeping a level of intensity across the range. Taittinger was only acquired in 1923 but has vastly grown to become one of the most well-known houses in the region. Daniel our

Producer Highlight: Cantina Terlano

Although these wines are made in a Cantina they are still some of the highest quality throughout this part of northern Italy, Terlano work with their growers to ensure they only receive the highest quality of grapes. The soils in this area determine the wines they produce which is evident in the Quarzr ange referring to the quartz soils these wines are grown on. These wines are very age worthy but the younger styles also have precision depth and a fresh character

Producer Highlight: Martin & Anna Arndorfer

You will often hear our Head sommelier Daniel speaking about his trip to Austria and that his highlight was this estate. The reason for that is as he says the Austrians are generally tidy and precise producing wines with similar characters but Martin broke this trend by producing in a natural manner and using many different aging vessels including fudre and stainless steel tanks. These are natural low intervention wines. Here we have three of the most common grapes in

England

Producers Highlight: The South west of England

I have chosen to highlight all of our English white wines as we feel they all have character and a sense of terrior. In recent years English wine has been getting better and better and still wines are starting to play a bigger role in the growing of English grapes. Daniel has visited all of the below vineyards and has chosen a few of his favourites for you to try from green and unoaked chardonnay to floral, fruity Bacchus that Bacchus himself would be happy to drink.

Producer Highlight: Disznókő

It is hard to think about Hungary and not to think about Tokaji the famous wine graded in Puttonyos (baskets) or the Eszencia style which is often referred to as sweeter than sugar. Disznoko sits right up their with some of the best producers in the region. The name actually translates to the "boar rock" referring to the rock above the vineyard.

Producer Highlight: Quinta do Noval

As our house port we really rate quinta do Noval there are not many names in the Douro which are held in such high regard as their Nacional wines, but they were also the first house to release a Late bottle vintage port. Their Tawnys are also high quality especially the 2000 Colheita (vintage tawny)
